Jared Sherman planned a fast and decisive small-town campaign. He'd come, see and conquer. Then he'd inform the townsfolk he was moving his uncle's business headquarters from peaceful Green River to the big city. But he soon discovered an unexpected hitch in his plans--Amelia Greene, the local high school librarian and all-around troublemaker. Amelia might seem innocent but underneath that wholesome exterior was the mind of a general. Soon she had Jared longing for freshly baked apple pies, baseball games and country kisses. From the first touch of her lips, Jared knew he was up against a master strategist. Would his powers of persuasion be equal to the power of her smile or would he succumb to the charm of a small town and the girl next door?
